Colossians is an excellent setting for focusing on worship together. Some passages sound like hymns the Colossians might have sung in their own worship (see 1:15-20; 2:9-15), and Paul urges the Colossians to sing "psalms, hymns, and songs from the Spirit, singing to God with gratitude in your hearts" (3:16).

Colossians and Philemon have traditionally been overshadowed by other New Testament texts thought to express Pauline theology more clearly. In this notable commentary, however, Marianne Meye Thompson shows how these two epistles provide a unique formulation of the gospel in terms of creation and reconciliation rather than justification by faith.

Let's Study Colossians and Philemon will help readers to see the horizons of both letters as extending to the church of all ages. Paul shows us that the acid test of the spiritual health of a church is whether or not Christ is at its heart – not just in some vague and general sense, but Christ in all his glory as he is set before us in God's Word.
