God Dies by the Nile is a powerful political novel. Yet it is not didactic. El Saadawi's writing is passionate yet controlled. She is very direct; no word is wasted for the novel is all of 138 pages. She is relentless. There is forward momentum to the narrative although the novel begins deceptively slow.

Hapi was the god of the annual flooding of the Nile in ancient Egyptian religion. The flood deposited rich silt on the river's banks, allowing the Egyptians to grow crops. Hapi was greatly celebrated among the Egyptians. Some of the titles of Hapi were "Lord of the Fish and Birds of the Marshes" and "Lord of the River Bringing Vegetation". Hapi is typically depicted as an androgynous figure with a big belly and large drooping breasts, wearing a loincloth and ceremonial false beard.

Notes from the North: Book Review: God Dies by the Nile
God Dies By The Nile was my introduction to Nawal Saadawi's novels. It has remained a firm favourite that is frequently revisited. A master of her craft, this medical doctor and Egyptian feminist writes about Arab women's passions, dilemmas, and their refusal to be bowed that resonates with many women in the West.

Collected for the first time in one complete volume, God Dies by the Nile and other Novels are three of El Saadawi's most remarkable tales of tragedy, revenge, despair, and violence. Powerful and moving, El Saadawi masterfully captures the personal struggles of women in a society steeped in hypocrisy and reveals the daily revolt of women against the corrupt norms of the Arab world.
