The Expression of the Emotions in Man and Animals is Charles Darwin's third major work of evolutionary theory, following On the Origin of Species (1859) and The Descent of Man (1871). Initially intended as a chapter in The Descent of Man, The Expression grew in length and was published separately in 1872. This book concerns the biological aspects of emotional life, and Darwin explores the ...

The Expression of the Emotions in Man and Animals - Wikipedia

Desmond Morris, author of Manwatching: A Field Guide To Human Behaviour, concludes that kissing originates from mothers feeding their children. In early human societies, it's believed that humans replicated birds when weaning their babies. They would chew the food themselves before passing it to their children via lip-to-lip contact.
