As I have said to countless ministers through the years, Ministry doesn't involve conflict, ministry IS conflict. Consider the life of Jesus in the gospels. Nearly every interaction involved conflict that need to be successfully negotiated. Several, such as when he is confronted with whether to pay taxes, were actually life-threatening. Now consider this. The healthiest churches are loaded with conflict, as are the least healthy.

Here are a few ways to thrive through conflict: Recognize and address the conflict. Within a church ministry, potential conflict is everywhere – a volunteer repeatably shows up late to serve, a preteen has discipline issues or lead pastor mice-manages the staff. The best thing you can do is learn to recognize an issue that needs to be addressed.
